ADJOURNS ANNEXATION DAY. The court then called in the grand jury and adjourned court because of Jury and adjourned court because of Annexation Day, an anniversary which he thought should be observed by ev-ery citizen of Hawaii. In dismissing the grand and trial juries from further duties yesterday, the court said: "Gentlemen of the Grand Jury—The court had occasion a few moments ago to refer to the fact that today is the anniversary of Flag Raising Day, the day known as Territorial Day, or Flag Raising Day Two years ago on the anniversary of this day all government offices were cosed. Today I have deemed it fitting and proper, under the deemed it fitting and proper, under the circumstances, to keep up that custom, which was not kept up last year, the day falling on Sunday. I have not observed any order from the government offices to this effect, but this court, as it has remarked, deems it fitting and proper, this being the anniversary of the day on which we were admitted into the United States, that we should adjourn. we should adjourn.

On that day all Hawaiian born were changed from Hawaiians to Americans and given the full rights of American citizens, of claiming America as their land, and of having the right to be called Americans. While they have not lost their aloha for their old flag, it is American flag, which means more to them than was thought. It meant that every one of us, from the lowest to the highest, whether Chinese, Japanese or of what nationality, were entitled to all the benefits derived from being citi-zens of the United States. Crude Petroleum May Be Used Instead of Water.

RUDE petroleum is to be used in place of water upon the streets of Honolulu as a dust-destroyer if the experiments ordered by the Executive Council yesterday morning prove successful. According to the claims of its advocates oil is not only much better adapted for this purpos but is also less expensive than common water. The tests soon to be made under the direction of Superintendent Boyd of the Department of Public Works will prove the truth or faisity of these claims.

White oil has not been used to any great extent in laying the dust on streets in the States, it is now being extensively utilized by the great railroad systems of the United States upon their roadbeds, which it not only hardens, but also eradicates flying dust-clouds which have always been a source of much annoyance to travelers.

Superintendent Boyd favors the new plan if upon investigation the utility of petroleum for the purpose is proven "I am in favor of the use of petroleum for sprinkling streets," he sa yesterday.

"It is claimed that one "dousing" of the streets with crude oil will keep them free from dust for six months, It this is true there can be no doubt of petroleum being cheaper than water. for it will not only do away with the expense of water but also with the need of a large force of men and horses for long periods.

present each street is sprinkled four times a day and even then some on the roads are dusty during these in to vals.

'It is claimed that the oil not only keeps the dust down, but also harden the roads. This is of itself a strong point in its favor, and one that com mends likely to the department. The annoyance caused by the passage of the sprinkling wagons would also done away with under the new dust destroyer. I think the experiment weil worthy of a trul and after consultation with Mr. Tenney will decide upon what street the test shall be made. If it is successful petroleum will probably be used on all the streets of Honolulu."

The experiments are to be made as a result of an offer made yesterday in a letter from E. D. Tenney, stating that he had several barrels of crude petroleum which he was willing to donate for the use of the Department of Pub-Works. Bethel street will probably be the scene of the tests.
